Cuba

APUA-Cuba was established in 1996 in collaboration with the Centro de Quimica Farmaceutica, and includes 58 members. The chapter leaders have shown interest in WHONET, a surveillance program to monitor local and global spread of resistance, and would like to introduce the program in Cuba. In October 1997, the chapter organized a conference entitled, "Methodological and Functional Considerations of Antimicrobial Resistance," in collaboration with Center for Medical and Surgical Research(CIMEQ). The conference examined topics such as:

- resistance detection methods
- susceptibility tests
- experience in the intensive care clinic
- microbiological mapping
